

ITC IS MOVING FORWARD!

Phase 1 construction begins November 2026

This first phase includes new mobility hubs, improved connections to Metro and streetscape improvements. Once complete, these improvements will help close gaps in Inglewood's transit connections and make everyday travel easier.

What You'll Notice First

Crews will begin moving equipment onto the future Market/Florence Mobility Hub site and preparing the site for construction. Streetscape work will also take place along portions of Market Street, Queen Street and Manchester Boulevard.

See the map on the reverse for Phase 1 improvement locations.

Access to Businesses and Homes

The contractor will work to maintain access to businesses and homes throughout construction. Temporary access routes or detours may be needed, and the project team will coordinate with area businesses and residents in advance.

Keeping You Informed

Before work begins in each area, we'll share updates explaining what is changing and how to navigate the area. Reach out to us at any time with questions about upcoming work or getting around during construction.

During Construction

Phased Construction - Construction will take place in stages to minimize disruption to the community. The timing and type of activity will vary by location as work progresses.

Temporary Changes to Traffic, Parking and Pedestrian Routes - Temporary changes to traffic patterns, public transit service, parking or pedestrian routes will be implemented around the mobility hub sites and on nearby streets. These changes will also be implemented for the Streetscape work along Market Street, Queen Street and Manchester Boulevard.

Utility Work - Some utility work may require temporary service interruptions. Affected customers will receive advance notice of planned interruptions.

Construction Noise & Truck Traffic - Near active work areas, you may notice construction noise and additional truck traffic.
